CAZARINA DYING OF NERVOUSNESS

Prostration That is Expected To End Fatally In Near Future.

HER SON IS THE CAUSE.

In Constant Fear That Nihilists Will Take His Life.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 18.—It would cause no surprise if the announcement of the death of the Czarina should be made any day.

Her ailment seems to be a complete nervous breakdown accompanied by hallucinations. One of the most frequent of these is that the little Czaritch is in deadly peril. Her anxiety for her only son is pitiful to see. She insists on having him with her as much as possible, and as her symptoms are much aggravated when he is out of her sight, arrangements are made to keep the little fellow in his mother's apartments the greater part of the time.

The Czar is greatly worried over the condition of the Czarina and is constant in his attendance on her, at times cutting out important work in order to be within reach in case the expected collapse should come. Everything possible in the way of medical science is, of course, being done for her, but it is feared that it is a matter of a very short time before the end will come.

Tener, of Pennsylvania; O'Neal of Alabama; Blease, of South Carolina; Wilson, of New Jersey, and in fact all of the new Governors have now entered upon their duties except Hooper, of Tennessee. Unless the Democrats postpone the canvass of votes, he will be inducted into office next week.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 17.—Lionel Levy, eighteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Levy, was found dead in the bath room at his home. Apoplexy caused by a recent fall is believed to have produced death.

FRANCHISE TO BE SOLD TODAY

Cumberland Telephone Co.,
Expected To Buy It On Agreed Terms.

FOR TWENTY YEARS.

Sale Will Be Held By City
Clerk H. W. Tibbs
At Court Room.

A telephone franchises will be sold by City Clerk H. W. Tibbs today, in front of the city court room, at 11 o'clock, which it is supposed will be bid in by the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co. The franchise is for a term of 20 years and continues the rates now charged by that company in the city, the maximum being $3.50 for business phones and $2 for residences.

In the absence of Mayor Meacham, Councilman N. A. Barnett, chairman of the Corporations Committee, will look after the sale of the proposed franchise.

The sale, if made, will have to be passed upon by the Council, which will hold its regular meeting tomorrow night.

DOWN GOES LIVING COST

Butter and Eggs Take Another Drop in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 17.—A belief that millions of pounds of butter and eggs, now held here in cold storage, were about to be thrown on the market, helped to cause a drop on wholesale prices of both. Elgin butter, quoted at 29 cents a week ago, is placed at 27 cents.

Prices set by the Chicago board, where the knowledge that fresh supplies will be placed in competition with storage goods, showed a greater break. There has been no equivalent decline in retail prices thus far.

Dead In Bathtub.

Paducah, Ky., Jan. 17.—Lionel Levy, eighteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Levy, was found dead in the bath room at his home. Apoplexy caused by a recent fall is believed to have produced death.

ROSY ARE THE PROSPECTS

For The Interurban Line To Trenton And Guthrie.

A REPORT IS RECEIVED.

Hopkinsville Business Men Who Are Behind The Project.

The Kentucky-Tennessee Traction company is just in receipt of a very favorable report on the proposed interurban line from Hopkinsville, Ky., to Guthrie, Ky., to their company, from The Arnold Company, engineers and constructors, Chicago, Ill., the scope of which covers a general description of the interurban electric railway proposed between Hopkinsville and Guthrie, Ky., together with a general description of the territory served and character of service proposed; it outlines the equipment and includes estimates both of the cost of construction and of the earnings of the proposed property.

The Kentucky-Tennessee Traction Co., has not been incorporated as yet, but private rights of way have been acquired in the name of M. C. Forbes, trustee, for the parties interested, who are as follows. M. C. Forbes, president Forbes Mfg. Co., and the Mogul wagon works; Nat Gaither, president Bank of Hopkinsville; T. J. McReynolds, vice president and A. H. Eckles, cashier, Planters Bank & Trust Co.; Nat Dortch, general manager the W. S. Mathews Sons Co.; John H. Bell, of J. H. Anderson & Co.; H. A. Keach, general manager the Keach Furniture Co.; Sam Frankel, owner and proprietor Frankel Stores, all of Hopkinsville. J. W. Cross, cashier Farmers & Merchants Bank, Pembroke, Ky.; W. J. Dickinson, of P. E. Bacon & Co., Model Roller Mills, Trenton, Ky.; R. F. Warren, cashier Farmers & Merchants Bank, Guthrie, Ky., and Chas. Van den Burgh, promotor, Toledo, Ohio.

The company has now arrived at a point where it will soon decide upon its financial connections, incorporate, determine the necessary bond issue and arrange for the sale of same and enter into a contract for the construction of the property.

At a recent meeting of the interested parties a finance committee, composed of M. C. Forbes, Nat Dortch, T. J. McReynolds, John H. Bell and Charles Van den Burgh, was appointed to complete the above details.

The fact that the company has secured such a favorable report from The Arnold Company, the president of which is Bion J. Arnold, the expert, whose well known connection with the New York traction situation, as well as that of Pittsburgh and Detroit, is an advance assurance of the success of the enterprise, and the business-like and successful manner in which Mr. Charles Van den Burgh, the promotor, has conducted his part of it, is highly gratifying to all the parties interested.

MAY SEPARATE TWINS

Filipino Couple Brought to
United States for Operation.

New Orleans, Jan. 17.—Two Filipino children, bound together in the same manner as the famous Siamese Twins, have been brought to this city by Dr. J. H. Gunning of Los Angeles, and J. R. Louis of Manila, to consider the question of separating them. Surgeons have so far refused to cut them apart. The children are 2½ years old. One had the measles, which did not affect the other. Both were vaccinated at the same time. It took on one but not on the other.

Examining Trial of Thomas
Thompson At Providence.

Providence, Ky., Jan. 17.—The examining trial of Thomas Thompson, aged 19 years, charged with killing his father on Dec. 26, will begin tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. The finding of the body of the wealthy business man in a ravine, and the arrest of the son two weeks later charged with the crime, has created the biggest sensation that ever struck this section of Kentucky, and the excitement in every town is running high. Over two hundred witnesses have been summoned according to the statement of Attorney Bourland for the defense, and all business will be suspended in Providence during the hours that the trial will be in progress.

A triple lynching of negroes the first year after the Lincoln Institute, the colored industrial school, was located in Shelby county over the protest of the white people, is not a good start. It has been only ten years since there was a double lynching from the same convenient bridge. The Lincoln Institute has been unfortunately located in the wrong place. The white race doesn't want to surrender Shelby county.

Judson G. Clements, Democrat, from Georgia, was elected chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission by the other members of the commission. He succeeds Martin A. Knapp, who was recently appointed chief justice of the new commerce court.

Popular Mechanics Magazine

New methods and means of safeguarding life and the stories of recent life-destroying disasters, in stern contrast, feature the February number of Popular Mechanics Magazine. The Chicago stockyards fire, the acetylene gas explosion on Manhattan Island, the great Cincinnati fire, the aeronautics death roll for 1910, and the London anarchist war, all are described in picture and story—an appalling list, truly. On the other hand, a new fisherman's dory, which, if capsized, becomes a life-saving apparatus, is described; a special deluge pipe for fighting basement fires has been invented; a new system of building charts to aid firemen has been devised; an unusually efficient type of forest-fire fighting train is in operation; H. H. Windsor, in his editorial, discusses the peril to firemen and urges ceaseless vigilance in building inspection, and improved construction regulations as the only remedy. Also, he hints of a coming development in aeroplane construction which will diminish the number of accidents, proposes a plan for reducing express rates, and discusses, at length, the Carnegie peace fund. Lieut. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, in an illustrated article, urges in strong terms the fortification of the Panama Canal.

Airmen's Death Roll.

The record of fatalities in aeronautics for the year 1910, which was not completed until the last day of the year, appears in the February number of Popular Mechanics Magazine. Fifty-three names make up the list, beginning with Leon Delagrange, on January 4, and the ending with Moisant and Hoxsey on Dec. 31. In connection, a number of interesting facts are pointed out: The four pioneers of three years ago, Wilbur and Orville Wright, Henry Farinan and Alberto Santos-Dumont—are all living; an uncannily large number of the stated fatalities occurred on the 13th day of the month, and the greatest number of deaths occurred in the last six months of the year, there having been but 14 before July 1.

Come to our sale, you will be glad if you do and sorry if you don't. Now is the time to save money by spending it.

A Splendid Tonic.

Cora, Ky.—Mrs. Iva Moore, of this place, says: "I was so weak, I could hardly walk. I tried Cardui, and was greatly relieved. It is a splendid tonic. I have recommended Cardui to many friends, who tried it with good results." Testimony like this comes unsolicited, from thousands of earnest women, who have been benefited by the timely use of that successful tonic medicine, Cardui. Purely vegetable, mild, but reliable, Cardui well merits its high place in the esteem of those who have tried it. It relieves women's pains, and strengthens weak women. It certainly is worth a trial. Your druggist sells Cardui.

Hamlett Makes Hit.

The people of Mayfield have had the pleasure of meeting Prof. Barkdale Hamlett, of Hopkinsville, Ky., who is a candidate for superintendent of public instruction, subject to the action of the Democratic State primary election, which takes place on May 27th.

He is certainly a friend to common schools, believes in seven months term, good roads and improved facilities for our schools in every respect. Prof. Hamlett is a very popular man and made many friends while in the city. He will probably get a strong vote in this section of the country.—Mayfield Messenger.

NO HOPE FOR HER

Miss Merton was one of those unclaimed blessings for whom their feminine friends who have achieved the great end of matrimony are constantly on the lookout for husbands.

She was the kind of girl—of forty or thereabout—of whom it is always said: "Isn't it the greatest pity in the world that she never married? She would have made such a good wife for some man!"

Miss Merton herself wasn't particularly troubled about her state of single blessedness. "I'm too fat to make a hit with the men," she would say with a rippling giggle. "Besides, I laugh too much. The men always think I'm making fun of them."

Her sister-in-law, John Merton's wife, was devoted to Miss Merton, and was most anxious to see her charms appreciated.

When her sister-in-law called her up on the telephone and asked her to dine with them on a certain evening, on which Harriet happened to know that John was going to bring home a business acquaintance whom she remembered to have heard Mrs. John speak of as a very reserved and dignified but prosperous widower, Harriet chuckled.

"Does he like them plump?" she queried.

"Does who like what plump?" Harriet's rippling giggle came over the wire. "Why, Mr. Ploperion, wives," she returned, generally. "John told me he was going to bring Mr. Ploperion home with him tonight."

"I wish John wouldn't talk so much," Mrs. John retorted, impatiently. "He said the stately Ploperion."

The dinner passed off delightfully. Harriet evidently made quite an impression on the prosperous widower. She was natural and unaffected. After dinner and a short game of bridge, Harriet rose from the table.

"Well, John," she said to her brother, "you know you'll have to take your little sister home."

John remained seated. "Oh, ask Ploperion," he said, lazily. "It's on his way."

Ploperion protested ponderously, but quite sincerely, that he would be delighted. As he and Harriet stepped out on the front porch Mrs. John gave a little exclamation.

"Why, it's been sleeting," she cried. "Do be careful. The steps are slippery."

In spite of the uncertainty that attended their sliding feet, Miss Merton and Ploperion were having an extremely pleasant walk, when at the top of a perfectly innocent looking hill, just as Ploperion was saying gallantly, "I hope I may soon have the pleasure of—" he suddenly flung his arm wide to the breeze. Then with an airy sweep of his leg he brought his feet into the proper position for what is technically known as "sliding down hill," and with his coat tails standing out grandly behind him and his arms rhythmically beating the air in the most approved fashion, with an unbelievable lightness and grace, he sailed off, giving forth, at short intervals, what might have been smothered bellows of joy.

For an instant Miss Merton maintained her equilibrium at the top of the hill, and then, as though inspired by Ploperion's apparent sportiveness, she gave a little impromptu skip, her feet flew out from under her and with a squeal of mingled terror and amusement she sat down and sped down the hill after Ploperion.

The next thing of which she was conscious was that she was sitting at the bottom of the incline with two substantial feet planted in the middle of Ploperion's stately back. For an instant they sat thus, then Ploperion faced about, looking with intense disgust into his companion's face and remarked: "How ridiculous people look doing a thing like this!"

He proceeded to roll over until he reached the edge of the sidewalk, on which he took a firm grip with both hands. Gradually and with extraordinary care he walked himself up as near as he could to where his hands were and then undoubling in a very gingerly way he managed to regain the perpendicular.

Miss Merton looked up from her lowly position into her companion's disgusted and indignant face. Then she buried her own face in her muff and shrieked with laughter.

"I'm awfully sorry for you, Mary," she said to Mrs. John the next day when she was telling the latter about it, "because if I hadn't laughed I think there would have been a fighting chance for me. So far as I can remember, he was on the verge of asking me to go motoring with him when the catastrophe happened, but after he had with much puffing managed to roll me over and get up on to my feet he never said another word except good night when he deposited me at my own door."

Miss Merton laughed again at the recollection. "I never saw anything in my life any funnier," she declared. "He had such an air of being full to the brim with hilarity and good fellowship and yet loathing it all the time."

"I'm really very sorry for you, my dear, because you will have to keep your matrimonial agency open indefinitely now, and you didn't have the fun of seeing him, either, but personally I wouldn't exchange the memory of that joyful sight for a dozen husbands."

Counteracting Lack of Sunshine.

A house built in Brooklyn was designed, as far as could be, to counteract the lack of sunlight, which the house's situation made unavoidable. The chief means for giving the impression of sunshine were yellow tinted walls and amber glass skylights. Monotony in the yellow tones was avoided because the location of each room offered some peculiar problem which was best solved by a tint different from that of the rest of the house. It is said that even on gray days there was enough of the stimulating effect of sunshine to prevent dull spirits, and the effect of the design on the health of the occupants was most beneficial.

ROAD BUILT FOR ONE LIZARD

Diplodocus 175 Feet Long Was Found in Utah 150 Miles From the Railway.

That it is easier to transport a 175-foot diplodocus under its own power rather than as a pampered passenger 15,000,000 years after it "cashes in" was revealed by Dr. William J. Holland, director of the Carnegie museum and institute at Pittsburgh.

The museum's latest find was discovered in the mountains of Utah. It was imbedded in solid rock, and to get the bones to a railroad station 150 miles of railroad bed had to be constructed.

Skillful miners were set to work with dynamite and slowly the different pieces of the animal's frame were taken out without breaking. In getting these to the railroad, besides the construction of the road, derricks and other paraphernalia had to be set up at the edges of rock with which the frame could be raised and swung to the other side.

At the scene of the find no effort is being made to free the bones from the rock which clings to them. Special workmen have been brought from New York to Pittsburgh to do this and this work is now under way on one carload of the bones already received at the workshop under the museum.

When set up Doctor Holland estimates that the diplodocus will be a trifle longer than 175 feet. The ordinary dinosaur of this species was 50 feet in length, but one 100 feet long was discovered several years ago.

A BARGAIN.

Nell—Isn't she a peculiar girl? She wouldn't look at him when he was rich, but now, after he's lost all his money, she accepts him.
Tom—Well, you know how crazy every woman is to get something that's reduced.

BEAUTIFUL ENGLISH FROST.

The beauty of frost is greater perhaps in England than in any other country, because it is apt to be so transient and because it is often not accompanied by snow. Frost does not work much change upon a snow-covered world. It may leave its delicate patterns on the window panes and decorate the ice with crystals, but elsewhere we have to look closely for the marks of its "silent ministry." It transforms the whole earth only where there is a great variety of color and surface for it to work upon; where it can edge every leaf and blade of grass with a fringe of white, and where it casts a silvery bloom upon the distant green uplands.

HE WAS ONE TOO.

George Schaper, the Nokomis druggist, was summoned to serve on the petit jury recently and came down to report. When Judge Jett asked if any jurors had good excuse for not serving, Mr. Schaper arose and claimed to be exempt because he is a "pharmacist." He was excused, when another juror arose and asked to be excused also.

"What is your excuse?" asked the judge.
"I have about the same excuse," he said. "I am a farm assistant."
Subsequently he was one of those arbitrarily challenged. Neither side wanted a man with a wit like that on the jury.—Montgomery County News.

THE ONLY TIME.

Dad—When his wife goes to the country for the summer.—Harper's Bazar.

THE HORRORS OF BOKHARA

Terrible Deeds That Once Made Place Byword Are Now Prohibited.

The terrible deeds that once made Bokhara a byword are now prohibited by the Russian government. Prisoners are not permitted, for instance, to be dragged through the streets by galloping horses. Nor are they thrown from the top of the high tower called the Minar Katan. This was the usual punishment meted out to evil-doers in the old days. Watched by thousands of spectators, the poor wretches were flung from that giddy height on to the flagstones beneath.

Bokhara has many chambers of horrors, unwholesome for western eyes to see, and the description of which would certainly be unfit for publication. Perhaps the most horrible of these is a pit where prisoners were tortured by vermin, which were so numerous and ravenous that in the absence of human prey they were fed on chunks of raw meat.—From Wide World Magazine.

HIS IDEA.

His Father (after punishing him)—It hurt me more to whip you than it did you.

Tommy—Then all I've got to say is that you can stand an awful lot of punishment without hollering.

ONLY ONE OF ITS KIND.

"The children should know and remember what their fathers have accomplished," said a native to a Frenchman as they stood before a monument which had just been erected in the East park, at Tokyo. The monument is probably the only one of its kind. It is one of the monster siege guns captured by the Japanese from the Russians in the war with that country, and it has been erected complete, with every detail restored. Writing about the memorial, the visitor says: "It made a deep impression on me, this grim instrument of war in the midst of a peaceful scene; and if the smiling young people who stood about it saw as I did, they read in the lines of tube and mechanism the American injunction: 'Keep your powder dry.'"

BATTLE OF AGINCOURT.

Agincourt, from which Henry V. made his triumphal entry into London, is our English way of spelling Azincourt, just as Blenheim is a similar corruption of Blindheim. In about 2½ hours Henry's little army slew 10,000 Frenchmen, nearly twice as many as we ourselves lost outright in battle during our Boer war, lasting over 2½ years—and yet we talk complacently of our "modern arms of precision!" A monument at Agincourt marks the cemetery of the slain. Few battlefields have changed their appearance so little. The field may be reached within a railway hour from Boulogne, but few tourists go to the scene of the most wonderful feat of arms achieved by our race.—London Chronicle.

MATERIAL EQUIPMENT.

"I've exposed yourself needlessly," said Mr. Dorkins severely. "Are you are threatened with a bad cold, and you are in no condition to meet it?"

"That's all you know about it, John," wheezed Mrs. Dorkins. "I've got 98 handkerchiefs."

NO WONDER.

"How did he get that black eye?" "He was singing, 'Any Little Girl That's a Nice Little Girl Is the Right Little Girl for Me.'"

"Did somebody object to the style of his singing?" "Yes; his wife."

Successors to J. T. Wall & Co.

FOR KENTUCKY—Generally fair Thursday.

At Fort Worth, Texas, Mrs. T. M. Brooks, wife of a prominent attorney, walked into a department store and sending for Mrs. Mary Binford, the manager of the ladies department, shot her five times when she approached, with a revolver concealed in her muff, killing her instantly. She then walked out, went to her husband's office and fainted. She gave a $10,000 bond. Mrs. Binford was a grass widow.

With Fitzhugh out of the race Tuesday in the voting for a Senator in Tennessee, McMillin came within 4 votes of election. The Republicans and Fusionists are still voting separately.

Fourteen Democrats are holding out against Wm. F. Sheehan, the Democratic nominee for Senator in New York, and he is eight votes short of election.

Damage suits against Nashville aggregating $60,000 have been filed, growing out of an automobile accident that injured several people.

Senator Bankhead of Alabama has been re-elected by unanimous vote of the Democrats.

Kern was Tuesday elected Senator for Indiana, giving the Democrats both Senators.

Smallpox has broken out in Graves county in a violent form.

Sues For Divorce.

James Rich on Tuesday filed suit here for divorce from his wife, Mrs. Clara Rich. They were married in this county in October, 1906 and in the following November the defendant abandoned his home, and they have not since that time lived together, the plaintiff states in his petition.

$100 REWARD $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surface of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars case that it fails to cure. Send for it to morrow.

TO TRAIN STATE GUARD

Lieut. Paul B. Malone, Takes Capt. Hughes' Place.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 18.—Lieut. Paul B. Malone, of the Twenty-seventh Infantry, Fort Sheridan, Chicago, has been assigned to inspect the National Guard of Kentucky. Lieut. Malone is one of the most active men in the United States Army, and the military department is delighted over the idea of having him instruct the national guards.

Lieut. Malone was recently assigned to the general staff in Washington, and will take up those duties in about four months. During the four months he will be connected with the Kentucky National Guard and will have offices at the State Capitol. Lieut. Malone is an author of note, having written a number of stories dealing with army life, among them being "West Point Yearlings" and "winning His way." Capt. W. N. Hughes, U. S. A., retired, of Columbia, Tenn., who has been connected with the Kentucky National Guard, has been relieved from duty and will return to his home in Tennessee.

AMUSEMENTS

"THE SQUAW MAN."

The coming of "The Squaw Man" announced for local presentation at Holland's Opera House on Tuesday night, Jan. 24, is like a fresh breeze wafted from the west. This dramatic gem from the pen of Edwin Milton Royle, one of the world's foremost dramatists, had its first production at Wallack's Theatre, New York, with William Faversham in the stellar role. It had the distinction of capacity houses for a whole year and duplicated this record at Her Majesty's Theatre in London. Since that time it has been seen in all the larger cities of both continents and translated into even languages.

This powerful drama is a play full of surprises, laughter and heart-throbs; a play that will live forever.

Another Fatal Explosion.

Eight men were instantly killed and one probably fatally injured when a boiler on the battleship Delaware exploded at sea Tuesday.

Grant for Use of Streets Was a License Revocable by Council.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 18.—The Court of Appeals reversed judgment of the Franklin Circuit Court in the case of the East Tennessee Telephone Company against the city of Frankfort, in which the lower court sustained prosecution of the company for alleged operation without a franchise.

The court here says that the right to use the streets of the city granted in 1881 was not a franchise, but merely a license which the Council can revoke on ninety days' notice, and then adopt an ordinance preventing operation without having first secured a franchise so to do.

Washington, Jan. 18.—By a vote of 155 to 124 the House refused Monday to lay on the table an appeal taken by Representative Fitzgerald (Democrat) from a decision from Speaker Cannon. Fitzgerald appealed from a decision which would have permitted the setting aside of the new rule giving power to take bills away from committee.

SCARE ABOUT OVER.

Smallpox Situation Well in Hand in North Christian.

The smallpox situation in the northern part of the county has been well handled by the Health officer, Dr. Lackey, and is well under control, with no new developments. The disease is of a mild type, and the early cases are all convalescent.

Tuesday Judge Knight received a letter from Marion Dukes conveying the information that the writer, who is postmaster, is well.

Judge Knight rushed out to the nearest doctor and had himself vaccinated. He prefers that smallpox patients who communicate with him do so by telephone.

There has been no appearance of the disease in or near the city. Every precaution is being taken and a close watch is being kept on the situation.

All school children not vaccinated have been taken out of school. Parents who fail to have their children vaccinated are liable to fine, but the matter is being handled so far without prosecutions.

This is the store that sets the pace by making 50c look like a dollar.

SENSATION CREATED.

By Indictment Of A Prominent Banker.

Bowling Green, Ky., Jan. 17.—A sensation was created in this city when it was learned that E. R. Bassett, formerly of this city, but now of Litchfield, and former cashier of the Deposits and Savings Bank, of Bowling Green, had been indicted at the special term of the Warren county grand jury.

The information elicited at the Circuit Clerk's office showed that the indictment was drawn against E. R. Bassett for making false entries in the bank's books. The foundation of the indictment came through an examination of the bank's books by an expert accountant, and it is alleged that this examining turned up several false entries.

A Poor Shot.

Two revolver shots were fired at Premier Briand in the French chamber of deputies Tuesday afternoon. He was unharmed. M. Miram, director of public relief, received one of the bullets in his leg.

This is the second recent assault upon the premises in two months.

The would-be assassin is a man named Gisolme, who was formerly clerk of the courts of Payonne. He was pounced upon by police officers before he could use his weapon again if he had such intention, and was hurried from the place.

New Senators.

Among the new Senators elected Tuesday were James Reed, Democrat Missouri; G. M. Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska; Miles Poindexter, Republican, Washington; and H. A. Lippitt, Republican, Rhode Island; votes were taken in 18 states.

CLUE DISCOVERED.

The Assailant of Carrie Cross May Be Walter Wilson.

A colored man named Minor Thomas called at police headquarters Tuesday and reported that the man who is alleged to have assaulted Carrie Cross, a small colored child, Saturday night, was in all probability, a negro named Walter Wilson, who moves up and down the railroad from Clarksville to Evansville. His mother lives in Clarksville. The description of Wilson tallied closely with that given of the man seen here. He has not yet been apprehended.

CUTTING A BIRD'S TONGUE

Many People Believe Splitting of the Tongue Necessary to Make Bird Talk.

"It is extraordinary," says a writer in the Strand, "how many persons are under the impression that, in order to enable a bird to talk, it is absolutely necessary to cut or split its tongue." All men who keep bird-shops in England, according to him, seem to believe in it, and one such man declared that splitting their tongues made them split the words. He continues:

"Some time back Miss Elsie Clerc, of the Alhambra, who is a breeder of fancy canaries, heard Jack, and spoke of him to Sir Herbert Tree, who keeps a number of pets. 'A very beautiful bird, no doubt, but I dislike the cruelty of cutting their tongues,' said Sir Herbert. I need hardly add that Jack's tongue has not been cut.

"I have heard that this fallacy had its origin in the following story: A man had a number of starlings in a large cage marked 'Fine young starlings—only one stilling each,' and as each would-be purchaser arrived, the man would say, 'There's a fine bird there, sir,' pointing out one of them; but I want half a crown for him, because he's the only one with a cut tongue, so he is bound to be a talker.' He would then proceed to catch the bird and show the cut tongue, and invariably succeeded in effecting a sale. This dodge would be repeated as each new customer arrived, and departed rejoicing at his good bargain. The reader, perhaps, is not aware that all starlings have a very peculiar formation at the extremity of the tongue, which gives the appearance of a little piece having been snipped out of it.

DON'T SCARE HIM AWAY.

"I haven't heard you making any complaint about the cost of living. 'Sh-sh! Don't mention it. There's a young man in the parlor with Mabel, and I think he's getting ready to propose.'"

STAGE LIGHTING.

A new system of stage lighting has been devised by Signor Meriano Fortuny of Venice, by which a diffused light, very like daylight, is obtained. Using electric arc lamps he so arranges them as to secure a reflection of their light from surfaces of cloth. The cloth for the purpose is made in broad strips, alternately light and dark, so that a dead white glare is avoided. The proportions of light and dark vary, and the cloth is arranged on rollers, controlled from in front of the stage, so that the operator can watch and change effects at will during the progress of the play. The sky-backing for each scene set is arched, to further the illusion, and the diffused lighting gives a remarkable result.

CONFUSION OF TONGUES.

"What did that automobile fiend say when they took him from under the wreck of his machine?" "The accident must have mixed him up, for when he recovered consciousness he muttered, 'That's a horse on me!'"

EXACT LOCALITY.

Caller—I've noticed a curious thing about dogs. They generally scratch themselves in the same spot. Bobby (joining in the conversation)—Yes'm; ours always scratches himself behind the kitchen stove.

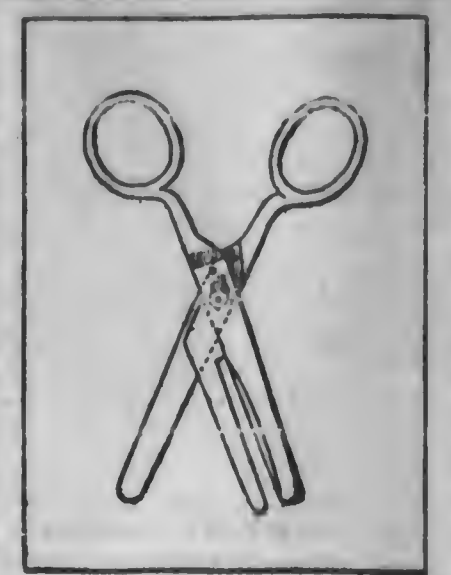

HELPFUL SUGGESTION.

Rivers was bellowing through the telephone to his wife, six miles away. "If you'll raise the window," said Brooks, "you won't have to use the telephone."

IT'S FOR REMOVING BUTTONS

Grooved Guard Guides Scissors and Protects the Cloth from the Blades.

A unique pair of scissors, designed expressly for the removal of buttons, has been invented by an Indiana man. Its chief feature is a guard device which, besides guiding the button, protects the cloth from being cut. In appearance the implement resembles an ordinary pair of scissors except that attached to one end of the blades is the grooved guard. The operation is apparent at a glance. The groove receives the button and sliding between it and the garment it is attached to, protects the latter while the threads are snipped through, at the same time raising the button to facilitate this. With this implement all the buttons can be removed from a coat without any danger to the latter in the same time it would take to remove one by the old method, which required a careful cutting of the threads to avoid getting a piece of the cloth between the scissors' blades. Tailors and seamstresses will appreciate the time thus saved.

DAINTY CHAFING DISH LUNCH

Menu by Inventive College Girls Gives Hint for Impromptu Meal.

Here is the simple but delicious menu served by a party of seven girls in a New England college recently, as a relief from the monotonous Sunday night supper. It was cooked in a chafing dish and might well be used as an impromptu luncheon.

First came little pork sausages, cooked until they fell to pieces for very richness. With these went dried beef and peanut butter, both served as sandwiches, between two crackers, little sweet pickles and pickled onions.

Then appeared large apples, scraped out till only a thin shell remained, filled with chopped apple and walnuts, and covered with salad dressing.

Finally, chocolate, with two marshmallows dropped in each cup, and home- or rather college-made cakes and fudge completed the meal.

Some of the dishes are, of course, out of season, but substitutes are easily found. For the sausage one might have eggs baked or shirred, both of which are easily prepared in a chafing dish. For the apples a good substitute is tomatoes prepared in the same fashion, chopped with green peppers, topped with an olive and served in a lettuce leaf.

The cakes may be the little cookies of oatmeal flour, butter, sugar and salt, which any Scotch person knows how to make.

Salmon Cutlets.

Two cups salmon (one can), one cup milk (heated), three tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, one teaspoon salt, cayenne, one tablespoon parsley, one teaspoon lemon juice, two eggs for dipping, two tablespoons water, fine bread crumbs, fat for deep frying. Make a white sauce by melting the butter in a sauce pan, then add the flour, salt and cayenne, add the hot milk gradually, allowing the mixture to boil each time before milk is added. Add finely flaked fish, chopped parsley and lemon juice. Spread mixture on a buttered platter to cool. Shape into croquettes, crumb egg and crumb. Sauce for the above—Sauce tartare: One cup salad mayonnaise dressing, one tablespoon chopped pickle, four chopped olives, one tablespoon chopped capers.

Rose Petal Pillows.

One lady says that she makes rose petal pillows successfully by simply placing the rose petals in the sun and air for a few hours with common salt. When they are quite dry she places them in the pillow, of thin swiss or silk and they remain fragrant indefinitely. Whether there is some particular stage of their life at which it is best to gather the rose petals or not, she does not specify.

Removing Coffee Stain.

Coffee stain, even with cream in it, can be removed from the most delicate silk or woolen fabrics by brushing the spots with pure glycerin. They should be rinsed in lukewarm water and pressed on the wrong side until quite dry. The glycerin absorbs both coloring matter and grease.

Popcorn Balls.

One cup butter, one cup molasses, pinch of salt; boil until brittle in cold water, stir in popcorn until well mixed, wet the hands and make balls.

HOTELS GREATLY IMPROVED

Service and Surroundings Far Out of Proportion to Advance in Expenses.

"Do you know why we came here?" asked a young married woman at a downtown hotel. "It is because everything is fresh and clean and new, with the best kind of service, for all of which we do not pay a cent more than we did at the old musty hotel where we stopped last winter. Now, isn't that a very natural reason for coming? And isn't that just why the old hotels are being gradually torn down. People have outlived them, as it were. Here we have good music in the evening, and I was surprised to see how men and women linger about in little groups to listen, just as they might down at Garden City, which is a very good atmosphere for a hotel, I think."

It is a fact that the service and surroundings in the present day hotel are far out of proportion to the advance in expense. For instance, stop at a country hotel where you pay the same price as in the city and note the difference in service and convenience. It is the prototype of the old city hotel. The adoption of the European plan has been largely responsible for the advance in conditions.

THREE GREATEST GENERALS

Alexander, Caesar and Napoleon Were All Distinguished in the Realm of Letters.

The three greatest generals the world has ever produced—Alexander, Caesar, Napoleon—were all men of letters. Alexander was a friend of Aristotle, and annotator of Homer. Caesar's Commentaries are still classic books. Napoleon would have been a man eminent in science had not he been an emperor. "Do you think," he said, "that if I had not been general-in-chief and the instrument of fate to a mighty nation, I would have accepted place and dependence? No! I would have thrown myself into the study of the exact sciences; my path would have been that of Galileo and Newton; and since I have always succeeded in my great enterprises, I should have highly distinguished myself also in my scientific labors. I should have left the memory of beautiful discoveries."

AMUSING EXPERIENCE.

When Miss Jennie Lee was on tour with the dramatic version of "Black House," she met with an amusing experience. One night she was in the midst of the long and harrowing death scene of poor Jo. The stage was darkened and the limelight illuminated the pale features of the death stricken boy. People were sobbing all over the house. Suddenly, to her consternation, Miss Lee heard the limelight man addressing her in a brawny Scotch whisper, audible to half the house. "Dee quick, Miss Lee—dee quick!" he roared softly. "The limelight's gaen out!" She did die "quick" but it was for the purpose of making a speech to that limelight man which he said he would never forget.—Detroit Free Press.

CHINESE TAKE TO COCAINE.

The Lancet publishes a statement by its China correspondent that it has been found that since the laws were established restricting the sale and use of opium many Chinese have found consolation in cocaine. The usual mode of taking cocaine among Chinese is by snuffing it, or in catarrh snuffs. "It is to be hoped," says the Lancet, "that the new regulations will be sufficient to prevent the easy purchase of cocaine, though in the absence of any coast preventive service there is no country in the world into which it is less difficult to smuggle goods or drugs of any description than China."

SERVES ONE GOOD PURPOSE.

Caller—Do you allow your husband to smoke in the house? Mrs. Hewligus—O, yes; when he's smoking that old pipe of his it makes me forget my neuralgia.

PRELIMINARY COURSE.

"There!" exclaimed the literary boarder, replacing the volume on the shelf; "I've read the last of Doctor Eliot's five feet of books. Now I'm ready to tackle one of the Sunday papers."

Who Was There That You Knew?

IN the shadowy ranks of those who marched to defeat or death or victory fifty years ago in the mighty conflict that convulsed this great nation, is there father or grandfather or uncle of yours? Would you like to see a photograph of him in that long ago day of his youth—a photograph that he never knew was taken? Perhaps we can show you one; and in any case, we can tell you a story, stranger than any detective fiction, of 3,500 priceless photographs that were lost and are found again.

3,500 Long Buried Photographs of the Civil War

THEY were taken by the greatest photographer in the United States of that day; they were bought by the United States Government for $30,000; they were buried in the War Department for 50 years—they are buried there still. But a duplicate set was kept by the photographer—who died poor and broken down; that duplicate set was knocked from pillar to post for nearly 50 years, until it was discovered by a New England collector. J. Pierpont Morgan tried to secure the collection—Ex-President Garfield and General Benjamin F. Butler said it was worth $150,000—but with the help of the Review of Reviews, the entire collection has been gathered into 10 great volumes and is placed within your reach at less than the value of one of the photographs. It is the most accurate, impartial history of the Civil War for the camera cannot lie. It tells the story of the War you never heard before. Taken under protection of the Secret Service, these photographs bring to light thousands of little-known phases of the war; they penetrate to strange places and record strange things.

Love and an Up-to-Date Cottage

By C. C. HAHN

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

When I came of age I stepped into as nice a little fortune as any young man need wish for, and said to myself:

"I have enough of an income to live a life of leisure. I shall enter into no business now and lose the best years of my life for enjoyment. When tired of amusing myself I shall take up some employment—as a pastime."

"Why should not man make business a pleasure, just as he does travel, music or yachting?"

At the end of my first year I found that I not only had used up my income but had also cut off a generous slice from my principal. At the end of three years—and I never was dissipated—I had come to my last $5 bill, and when I spent it, wrote across its face, "Good-by, Bill. You are my last." Then I began to look about me for the business that was to be a pastime.

I had always been firmly convinced that if a man really wanted to work, he could find it. But, strange to say, when I started out in search of a position, I found none waiting for me to step into. My friends all gave me good advice. They did not know that my fortune was gone and I took particular pains not to enlighten them. I had that much worldly wisdom. I did not want either their sympathy or their cold shoulders. Their advice was always to the effect that no one could really engage in congenial business without investing money, and they advised me to do so. They even went further and brought forward schemes in which to invest.

At last I settled down as a real estate agent. That, I thought, would bring me among none but pleasant people, or if it did, I could easily get rid of them. I took out a license, rented an office, and actually found myself engaged in a business entirely my own—and without investing money. My friends, as usual, were kind. They all listed their property with me, whether they wanted to sell it or not. But even here there were some uncongenial things which did not suit me. There was Jones, for instance. He had a delightful piece of property, but his lowest price was $10,000, while my friend Brown, who wanted to buy it, would not pay more than $4,000. When I grew wiser, I learned that the property was worth only $5,500.

At the end of my first month I pawned my gold watch to pay office rent and my boy's wages. At the end of the second I began to dispose of my wardrobe and speedily reduced it to one suit. Then I requested my landlady to allow me to occupy one corner of her garret and began living on two meals a day. I also let out half my office to a man who could afford to pay rent. At the end of his second month he failed with the requisite rental and offered to take the place of my office boy as payment. So my office boy went.

In the course of time I got down to extremities; slept in my office and ate when and where I could. I also learned tailoring—so far as keeping my solitary suit in repair.

But things took a turn at last. I had a beautiful cottage on my list, and one day a handsome carriage stopped before my door, and in came a widow whom I had slightly known in my moneyed days. She wanted that cottage—wanted it badly—but after looking over the terms, said:

"Mr. Seville, I must have this place. But I cannot pay cash unless you can find a purchaser for my brown stone house on Madison avenue. If I could make an exchange with the owner of the cottage I would pay you almost anything you might ask."

Was there ever anything a young real estate agent would wish for more than a chance to become salesman of a brown stone mansion on the most fashionable avenue in the city? I promised her a buyer within a week, and—kept my word.

Next day Mrs. Kent called for me and we went out to inspect the cottage. Incidentally, her daughter, a vision of lace, loveliness, sunny hair and sunny smiles, was in the carriage with us—a vision which I had known also, and dreamed about in the days of my inheritance.

In wrestling with one of the windows which had stuck fast, I managed to split my only coat soon after reaching the cottage, and the mirrors in the room showed seedy vest and shirt, whichever way I turned. But no thanks to me, the house was so delightful that the only question was if the owner would agree to an exchange. He did, and I won my first commission of importance.

Next day I sat in my office deeply immersed in a meditation upon the extreme foolishness of squandering a fortune which would have enabled me to dream with ease of a fluff-haired, sunny-smiling girl, when a carriage stopped at the door and in it the fluff-haired vision. I blushed a little as I ran out and spoke to her. She handed me a package saying:

"Mamma could not come today and sent you this by me. And she wished me to ask if you will not take tea with us tomorrow evening?"

I took the package and accepted the invitation, although I wondered a little as to the spectacle I would present in that dilapidated coat. My tailoring had not been a success in this instance.

Returning to the office, I tore open the package and found my commission in bills and gold. I caressed the strangers. It had been a long time since they had been calling on me. Never before in my life had I known how really beautiful money looks. A Corot is nothing by the side of the line drawing on a dollar bill, and when it came to gold eagles and hundred dollar bills—diamonds are not in it with them. I can say this from experience. I had beef-steak for dinner that night—beef-steak smothered in onions.

Among those bank notes was the last $5 bill on which I had written my farewell two years before.

"Back again, are you?" I said. "You won't be so slippery next time." I felt that I had got the tail of my fortune in my hand again, and proposed to pull it back to me.

Five years later, as the fluff dream and I were seated in this same cottage, she asked me for money to buy rattles, or something, for our boy, and I gave her that $5 bill. As her eye caught the lines I had written seven years before, she exclaimed:

"Poor fellow. This is some one's last dollar. How I wish I could give it back to him."

"You did that five years ago."

And then I had to tell this story.

TREES KILLED BY FIGS.

In the Wide World Magazine appears a remarkable photograph taken in the Chirinda forest, South Zanzibar, commonly called "The Garden of Rhodesia." The photograph clearly shows the destruction wrought on the giant forest trees by the climbing parasitic figs common to most tropical forests. The seeds of these figs are deposited by the fruit-eating birds which frequent the forest, and, rapidly germinating in any crevice containing decaying matter, speedily envelop the foster-parent—causing its death by a process of strangulation. A close inspection of the photograph will show that what at first seems to be the gnarled and knotted bulk of some forest monarch is merely a collection of these snake-like climbers. On looking farther one can see the head and shoulders of a man emerging from what appears to be the solid tree, but is in reality only a hollow shell formed by the murderous parasites.

MODEL MADE OF CORKS.

Charles Hawkins of Peterborough, Eng., has succeeded in building a series of most interesting models, the chief of which is a large and comprehensive model of Burgley house, the historic seat of the Marquis of Exeter, near Stamford. It took Mr. Hawkins, in his spare time, ten years to complete, during which time he walked nearly 3,000 miles in repeated visits to the house in order to secure accuracy. The model, says a writer in the Strand, measures five feet in length, four feet in width and three feet in height, and no fewer than half a million bottle corks were used in its construction.

WHY THEY WERE GOOD.

"The men in that hose company from the Tenth ward seem to be death on fires," I remarked to the superintendent of the fire department, as I watched the brave boys fighting the flames.

"Yes," he said, "they were all recruited from a lot of ex-apartment house janitors."

WILL TRICE

Elected as Director in The Citizens Bank, Tampa.

The Tampa, Fla., Times has this notice of a deserved promotion that has come to a Hopkinsville boy:

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the Citizens' Bank and Trust company a gratifying report was made by the president, showing the earnings to be the largest of any year during the bank's existence, while the losses incurred during the year were less than $100.

The following directors were elected for the year 1911: John Trice, E. M. Hendry, C. E. Allen, A. J. Knight, Frank Bentley, Enrique Pendas, A. L. Cuesta, W. B. Gray, John Savarese, Ike Maas, W. E. Dorchester, E. B. Lucas, L. A. Bize, John T. Dismukes, and W. W. Trice the latter elected to fill the vacancy of the late Dr. F. W. Inman.

After adjournment of the stockholders' meeting the directors held their meeting and re-elected the old officers: John Trice, president; C. E. Allen, cashier; E. M. Hendry, vice president; W. W. Trice and D. H. Laney, assistant cashiers.

This bank pays 5 per cent. semi-annual dividends, and a nice amount was placed to the surplus account out of the earnings of the last year.

Escaped With His Life.

"Twenty-one years ago I faced an awful death," writes H. B. Martin, Port Harrelson, S. C. "Doctors said I had consumption and the dreadful cough I had looked like it, sure enough. I tried everything, I could hear of, for my cough, and was under the treatment of the best doctor in Georgetown, S. C. for a year, but could get no relief. A friend advised me to try Dr. King's New Discovery. I did so, and was completely cured. I feel that I owe my life to this great throat and lung cure. It's positively guaranteed for coughs, colds, and all bronchial affections. 50c & $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.

A Card of Thanks.

I wish to take this method of thanking all our church people and neighbors for their kindness and attention shown us during my severe illness. It is evident that my recovery is due to the mercy of the Lord, and the constant attention and attendance of our beloved physician, Dr. Bell, of this place.

Dr. C. B. Graves, of Morganfield, Ky., was called in consultation with Dr. Bell and rendered valuable aid. Our friends in Clay, Ky., where I was pastor just before coming to Gracey, heard of my sickness and came to see and sympathize with us. They not only came to see us, but left with us that which would provide for our wants when they were gone. It is sweet to know you have ber and love you. It was a great pleasure to have them with us at this time.

Certainly no people could be better to their pastor, than the Gracey people have been to us. It is a blessing and a privilege to live among such a people. They remembered us with many nice presents during the holidays, some of which were to eat and some to wear.

The kindness and attention we received was not confined to the Baptists; but those of other denominations, and of no church relations, were hearty in their sympathy and help. They are all a unit in saying, "I am glad to see you up again." I hope to reward them by doing them better service in the pulpit and in the field.

We can hardly know who our friends are till afflictions come and give them a chance to show who they are.

Even the colored people here showed us much kindness, and repeatedly offered their assistance.

May God's richest blessings be showered upon all the good people and all our friends who have so kindly remembered us during our afflictions.

Respectfully
C. H. GREGGON.

DAMAGE SUIT.

Asks $1,500 of Jas. K. Hooser For Breach of Contract.

Irving Roseborough has brought suit for $1,500 against Jas. K. Hooser, of Paducah, for alleged violation of contract made a year ago. It is alleged that Mr. Hooser contracted not to sell any goods in Christian county, but it is claimed that he has solicited business and sold 50 suits of clothes in the county. The suit is for damages, for violation of the "good will" clause of the contract, as well as for profits on the business done with those who might have been the plaintiff's customers.

THIRD NEGRO GOT AWAY.

Jim West Made His Escape From The Shelbyville Mob.

Shelbyville, Ky., Jan. 18.—There is now no doubt existing that Jim West, one of the victims of the Sunday morning mob, escaped and is now in a place of safety. West's father-in-law and mother-in-law, George Bennett and his wife, acknowledged to the police today that West appeared at their house Sunday morning shortly before daylight. They say he was severely bruised about the neck and back and badly frightened. They dressed his wounds and kept him hidden in the house until after dark last night, when they gave him a good suit of clothes and all the money they had, and he left for parts unknown.

One report is that West went to Frankfort and Gov. Willson is protecting him and has detectives looking for the members of the mob recognized by West.
